

bulthaup b3 – kitchens that are more than just showpieces for cooking in.

bulthaup adds to the fascination of the living space

Aich, 2008 - bulthaup's developments and innovations are not driven by fashion or trends. The company consciously focuses on long-lasting design with a strategy geared towards durability and maximum value. With its bulthaup b3 concept, introduced in 2004, bulthaup has been setting the standard for kitchens and living spaces – for communicating, cooking and enjoying. Instead of a conventional floor-plan-based kitchen layout, the wall is activated and vitalized. The kitchen space becomes a living space that can be extended seamlessly into other areas of the home.

With the b3 multi-functional wall, furniture can for the first time be freely suspended, making it functional, ergonomic, design-oriented and floating.

bulthaup monoblock

With the development of the bulthaup b3 monoblock, bulthaup is continuing its ongoing innovation process with a milestone in sculptural kitchen architecture. The seamless stainless steel body consistently continues the minimalist design of bulthaup b3. The precise, high-quality finish of the stainless steel without joints between the rear panel, side panels and worktop give the bulthaup monoblock a particularly purist appearance. It is a solely one-off item and is planned and manufactured exclusively in line with the customer's wishes. The dimensions and front materials can be selected and functions such as cooktops and water points integrated in line with your needs. This is possible because bulthaup perfectly combines high-caliber craftsmanship with state-of-the-art industrial production. The monoblock can be planned in line with the architectural conditions, as an island, with or without rear panel, as a peninsula or in front of a wall.

bulthaup monoblock in laminate

The bulthaup monoblock in laminate is the logical continuation of the minimalist and purist design of bulthaup b3. The seamless laminate body, just like its fore-runner in stainless steel, features flawless, top-quality manufacturing and is planned as an individual piece based on the customer's personal wishes. The homogenously solid core, thick-layer laminate ensures a seamless continuation of the worktops, side panels and back facing. The result is a sculpted monoblock that looks as though it was all made from a single mold.

bulthaup b3 is on display at selected dealer showrooms around the world.